Guide To Aging Wine. Why And When To Age Wine | Wine 101 Aging or "cellaring" a wine means that you decide to take a wine you have purchased and store it in a cool, dark place for a number of years, allowing the wine to improve as it sits in the bottle. Aging of wine - Wikipedia Due to the cost of storage, it is not economical to age cheap wines, but many varieties of wine do not benefit from aging, regardless of the quality. Experts vary on precise numbers, but typically state that only 5-10% of wine improves after 1 year, and only 1% improves after 5-10 years. Wine Improves with Age, Everyone Improves with Wine ...
